3	Meh - I don't really care about any of them, I think. I mean, it's nice to not have them all look like they were born in the same decade, so it would be nice to preserve some of the nicer ones, but I can't think of any that are so fabulous that they couldn't be replaced. I care more about preservation from a sustainability perspective, I guess.	1012	Y	no answer	Y	N			30-39	Unemployed

21	It would be great if the homes that have been turned into commercial entities don't all become four story boxes. it would be great if businesses that built the neighborhood don't get priced out so that people from outside the neighborhood can eat. I mean, really, who can afford to go to Ava Gene's more than once a year? I think it's great that they're doing well, but when their success means Clay's is forced out, to what end is this all going? 46	My family owns a ["type of bussiness omitted"] shop between 37-36 and there are a few buildings on either side of it, and across the street that up until recently were dilapidated. Once the development started we saw many of those rehabilitated (SE Wine Collective and Cibo, Artifact, Xico, where Time-Bomb Vintage was) which has been one of the most exciting "symptoms" of development for me. Two years ago we saw many abandoned lots filled with broken glass, needles, graffiti and trash -which you won't find now. What would really make my day would be the re-purposing and rehabilitation of the theater.	1209	Y	10	Y	N			30-39	Community and Social Services Occupations

253	The old stone building that was once part of the reservoir on the NE corner of Division and 60th. Also the old building across the street from the stone building which is on the NW corner of Division and 60th. These have much charm. The Ford building on 11th is looking great since its restoration. Franklin High School is also an interesting building.	2368	Y	16	Y	N		no answer	60-69	Community and Social Services Occupations
